Marvel comic number 1 price

On Thursday, February 18, 18, Legacy Auctions sold a Certified Guaranty Company (CGC) ranked 9.4 copies of Amazing Fantasy #15 in the Comic and Comic Signature Items sold in Dallas. As one of the greatest copy classes of Spider-Man's first appearance ever to be sold at the auction, he hoped to fetch a high price. In fact, it set a record, sold for $454.100. That's most ever paid for a Spider-Man comic at auction. To commemorate the sale, CBR compared it to the current record for a copy of Amazing Fantasy #15 as well as other notable books. Below is a list of the ten most expensive comic book sales of all-time, on a basis per title. Instead of listing the biggest sales ever, we will stick to the most expensive copy of each title rather than listing every remarkable sale of Comic Action #1, for example. 10) Incredible Hulk #1, CGC 9.2 – $326,000 Perhaps the warmer collectible comic book of recent years has been the incredible hulk of this 1962 comic book by Stane Letan and Jack Kirby. There is only one known copy of exists that is ranked better than the 9.2pc sold in August of 2014. This sale followed another 9.2m copies sold in June for $320,000. Yes, twice in a matter of months people paid more than $300,000 for the first hulk appearance! This huge growth in prices for the comic (copy of the $326,000 sold for less than half that five years earlier) led to a crowd of other funny copies of this going to market, with rising prices for copies of all kinds of conditions. 9) Captain America Comic #1, CGC 9.2 – $343,057 If people think that Captain America's Nick Spencer is too political, you would be shocked by the first problem of Joe Simmons and Jack Kirby's Captain America, which features the creation of the leader of a country which the United States was not even at war with at the time. The comic became a sensation, leading to the death threats against the two creators of funny young Jews. This copy is sold in 2011. 8) Marvel Comics #1, CGC 9.0 – $350,000 advanced in the comic book industry at the turn of the 21st Century is what was really driving the last explosion in the comic action market. So it's important to note that Marvel Comics #1 (the first comic book published by the comic company that would eventually become Marvel Comics, and also the first appearance of both Namor and the original Human Torch) is only this low on the list because copies of higher selling classes are just a 9.0s. The typical rule of thaad is that double price per 0.2% after a 9.0. When you add to the fact that this copy is sold in 2003, a copy of higher grades of this comic will likely eventually end up at the highest end of this list (similarly, the All-American Comic #16, the first appearance of Green Lantern, not even on the top 10 list, but when the next 9.0 or better copy goes on the market, it almost surely will end up very high). During saw some references to a copy of this book sold for $367,000, no reliable sources demonstrated such a vomiting made. 7) Tales of #39 Suspension, CGC 9.6 – $375,000 talk of notes, Jack Kirby and Stan Lee's Tales of Suspense #39, the first appearance of Iron Man, is a great example of the side effects of a high class on major collectible. This 2012 sale was likely also bought by the attention that Iron Man gave as a film character in the years since the first Robert Downey Jr. film was released. 6) Funny Flash #1, CGC 9.6 – $450,000 Now would be a good time to discuss Edgar Church. The church was a commercial artist and collected aircraft from boat magazines and comic books. Because of where he stayed in Colorado, his basement (where he kept his books) worked as a sort of moist, keeping the books in stunning condition. Most of the best golden comic types of ages in the world come from his collection (most of which were bought by Chuck Rozanski of Mile High Comics, leading to books in this collection being referred to as either being from the Mile High Collection or Church Collection. Copy this to Flash Comic #1, the first appearance of the Golden Age Flash and Hawkman, is from this collection. It sold in 2010 for what was, at the time, the second largest amount of any comic book ever (of course, to show just how much of the flu the industry was at the time, the highest sale of the time was a month earlier and two different sales occurred later that same year). 5) X-Men #1, CGC 9.8 – $492,937.50 The effects of the slight increase is evident in this 2012 sale of the first problem of Stan Lee and Jack Kirby's X-Hand series, as the previous copy of sale was a 9.6in that sold for a little less than half the price of that copy, which is the highest ranked book of any of the comic on this top ten list. 4) Batman #1, CGC 9.2 – $567,625.00 A drastic code release in 2013 led to this classic comic, the first issue of Batman's continuous series with the first appearance of both the Joker and Katwoman, becomes one of the very funny books in the ever-cracked continuous story to crush the $500,000 barrier. 3) Undercover Comic #27, CGC 8.0 – $1,075,000 Never had the vagaries to score when it comes to the sales of collectible valuable books has been quite so increased as fact that Comic Detectives #27, having the first appearance in, you know, Batman, is only the third-ranked book on this list, after initially setting the record for the most expensive book of all-time when it sold at the end of 2010. This is because no one is selling a copy of Funny Detectives #27 above an 8.0am in the modern era. Copy the Chuch collection ranked at an 8.5% and hasn't been on the market since 1994 (when it sold for $125,000!). There are a handful of 9.0 copies and above outside, and if they ever went to the markets they would sell for much more than $1,075,000. There is a good case to be made that a theoretical 9.2K detectives comic is literally the most important comic book in existence. 2) Amazing Fantasy #15, CGC 9.6 – $1,100,000 We can talk about relative value on comic till the cows come home, but at the end of the day, when things go in adjustment, you never know just how many people will face, and sometimes the results will surprise you, as this copy of Amazing Fantasy #15 by Steve Ditko and Stan Lee, the first appearance at Spider-Man, which sold for more than a million dollars in 2011. Experts certainly expected a very high total, but considering that the record for a Silver Age comic book at the time was under $300,000, this comic will for more than a million were quite the shocker. 1) Funny #1 Action, CGC 9.0 - $3,207,852 Viewed by many as the holy grail of collectible comic books (although, as noted earlier, a good case could be made that Comic Detectives #27 is actually true holy grail for God in collectible comic books), if you rank the largest sales of comic books, sales of DC Comics #1, featuring dulces Jerry Siegel and Siegel's Joe Shuster Superman, would take most of the spots on a top ten list, with an amazing copy card that has sold for a million or more, with this 9.9CC ranking (9.9CC) one of only two officially class 9.0 copies in the world) sold on eBay in 2014 for no more than three million (after the official 9.0 copy sold for $2.161 billion three years earlier). Note that there is a copy of the Church collection in this book, as well. Home owners won't get it class, but it is anecdotely ranked in a 9.2pc. This is in part due to the fact that (widely spoken) the FF movies have been badly received, while the X-Men movies were famous. But to us, the roots go deeper. The X-Hand is way more varied comic book series. The characters seem more real and human, as well as inhuman/mutant, and as the characters have come and gone, the series has evolved more than FF. Fantastic Kat, of all the Comic Marvel characters, rarely appear in other comic book series, while X-Men cross over all the time. A mint copy of X-Men #1 broke all records in summer 2012, with the strong values for the silver age and other key issues. But as most of them are appearing separately in the top 10 anyway, it makes sense to put Man Done here. The movies, starring Robert Downey, Jr. as Tony Stark, have done wonders for the real value of the old Iron Man comic. Having many appearances, the famous Tales Of Suspensed #39.Iron famous red and gold weapons were seen first in Tales in the Suspense #48. By then, it was in silver blera (ToS #39) and gold blera (Tales of suspension #40),#48 that will achieve clear status, as the red and gold watching is the way it is known in the movies. See our full article on the Fantastic Four Comics. This is in part due to movies not being well received, and in part due to the fact that Fantastic Four almost never cross over to other books as a team. That doesn't mean the early issues aren't picked up. Far from it. Just that a run of FF comic would be more affordable to put together right now.
